MISSING HAWAII ISLAND EXTENDED FURLOUGH INMATE CAPTURED

HILO – Hawaii extended furlough inmate John Towle was captured by Hawaii Police and returned to the Hawaii Community Correctional Center (HCCC). Police brought him back to HCCC at 3 p.m.

On April 30, Towle failed to check in at the Kona Furlough House. Inmates in the extended furlough program live and work outside of the facility but must check in at various times.

Towle is serving time for unlawful methamphetamine trafficking. His next parole hearing is scheduled for June of this year.
